Death of Robt. Woods, Jr.

After an illness of several months, from which he was thought to be recovering, Robert E. Woods, Jr., seven years old, died yesterday just before noon in the infirmary at Lebanon. His death was sudden, as his father had left him only a short time before to go to church, feeling assured that the boy was recovering and out of danger. He was taken ill with scarlet fever in February and complications arising, he was confined to his bed at Lebanon. He seemed to improve after a few weeks there, under the care of his mother and the nurse. Mr. Woods spent one or two days every week with him, and yesterday left him for a short time, his condition showing a much improvement.

The body will be brought to Louisville to-day and the funeral will be held at 9 o'clock to-morrow from the family residence, 2109 Brook street. The dead boy was an unusually bright, attractive child and was a favorite with all who knew him. He was handsome, manly and possessed the qualities which make a child attractive to old as well as young. Monday's Courier-Journal.

Robert E. Woods, Sr., was born and reared in this city, and is well known here.

Well Worth Seeing.

One of the most interesting exhibits among the many of all kinds at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis is that of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company. The company is repeating rifles and shotguns and all kinds of ammunition. The exhibit was in readiness and was opened on the first day of the fair, a fact that clearly illustrates the enterprise and up-to-date methods of the company behind it. It is the aim of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company to show at their exhibit, the high development which they reached in the making of guns and ammunition, and one needs only to see the exhibit to realize how near to perfection that development has come. There can be seen the new automatic repeating rifle, all kinds of shotguns, the modern smokeless powder shotgun shells and rifle cartridges; in fact everything that can interest the devotees of hunting and trap and target shooting. Don't fail to see the exhibit at the Manufacturers and Fish and Game Buildings. It's well worth while.

SHAW'S OPINION OF THE FAIR.

St. Louis, June 18.—After twice changing the time set for the dedication of the Philippine reservation the exercises were held to-day. The arrival of Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, who reviewed the parade from the speaker's stand, was the chief factor in determining the authorities to hold the ceremonies to-day, despite the unfavorable weather. Addresses were made by Dr. W. P. Wilson, chairman of the Philippine Exposition Board; Col. Clarence H. L. Edwards, U. S. A., chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, and President Francis.

At the conclusion of his visit to the fair Secretary Shaw-to-night said:

"It is unnecessary for me to say that the Louisiana Purchase Exposition is the greatest show on earth, or that was ever produced, or that will ever be attempted. The work that has been done is more than prodigious. Twelve hundred acres of timber land have been graded, leveled, piped, wired and improved to equal a city of 250,000 inhabitants, and in two years. One can see the exhibits in a day or two; but no one can see the exhibits at the exposition in thirty days. A father of a bright boy can afford to send him simply to study any one of at least 1,000 exhibits. It would probably be better for the boy to study any one of the thousand than to attempt to study the thousand."

"I wish every high school in the United States could see the exposition, and if every high school in the United States would see the exposition it would be the best investment the Government has made since it purchased the Territory."

H. DeH. MOORMAN INTERVIEWED.

H. Dell Moorman, of Hardinsburg, Ky., who is a Major on Gen. Bennett H. Young's staff, reached Louisville last night on the way home from the Nashville reunion of Confederate Veterans. He stopped at Seelbach's Hotel. Major Moorman is the youngest man on Col. Young's staff, and has the distinction of being one of the few men not Confederate soldiers appointed on the staff of a division commander. In the choice of Louisville for the next reunion, Maj. Moorman said last night:

"There was all the time a sentiment for Louisville stronger than that for any other city, and when Col. Young made his speech and Miss Ewell followed it with the song, 'My Old Kentucky Home,' there was nothing else to it. The convention was taken off its feet, and Louisville, which had been the preference before, secured the unanimous expression of the veterans. Col. Young, commanding the Kentucky division, was cheered whenever he appeared, and was frequently called upon for speeches when the occasion was entirely informal. Kentucky has reason to be proud of the reception which she received in Nashville."—Saturday's Courier-Journal.

Some Statistics on Wheat.

The average annual supply of wheat for the past 7 years on June 1st, is 14,000,000 bushels. The visible supply June 1, 1903, was 35,000,000 bushels. The visible supply June 1, 1904, was 33,000,000. So from these figures it will be seen that the visible supply at present is 11,000,000 bushels under the 7 years average or 5,000,000 under that of last year.

The average highest price for June for the last 7 years is 92 cents per bushel. The highest price for June of this year is $1.15.

The acreage for spring wheat this year is 116,000 under last year and the general condition is 93.4 per cent as compared with 95.9 per cent last year in June.

The acreage of winter wheat is not given in this report but supposed to be less than last year, while the condition on June 1, 1904, was 77.7 per cent as compared with 82.2 per cent last year.

Now with these conditions considering that both acreage and condition is considerably below that of last year and the surplus eleven million bushels short of a ten year average and five million short of last year, and that last year's wheat sold up to $1.15, what should this year's crop sell at?

HOME CIRCLE COLUMN.

A Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join the Home Circle at Evening Tide.

As we pen this column especially in the interest of wives and mothers let us draw a picture that noble woman had the courage to witness and can look upon with pride while the bravest of men had business calling them elsewhere. How can we picture to ourselves a more touching scene than the one which often occurs in our Lord's earthly works of tender love?

There stood by the Cross of Jesus, His mother, Mary, the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene, and with them was St. John. Truly a sorrowful and loving band—the only ones who in the hour of shame dared to show their close personal sympathy with the Crucified. Only one man amongst them but there was three women there. Women oftentimes surpass men in courage, and they did on this occasion. St. Thomas had once said, "Let us also go that we may die with Him." But he did not go. St. Peter had avowed that though he died with the Lord he would not deny Him, but we do not find him at the foot of the cross. But the three Marys are there. It by the publication of the Home Circle Column we gain the friendship and esteem of the queens of our homes, we will have no fears of being forsaken at time of trouble."

Woman has yet to learn the purifying and blessedness of virtue she may gain and maintain over the intellect and affections of the human mind. Though she may not teach from the portion, nor thunder from the forum, in her secret retirement she may form and send forth the sages that govern and renovate the world. Though she may not gird herself for bloody conflict, nor sound the trumpet of war, she may enwrap herself in the panoply of heaven, and send the thrill of benevolence through a thousand youthful hearts. Though she may not enter the list in legal collision, nor sharpen her intellect amid the passion and conflict of men, she may teach the law of kindness, and hush up the discord and conflicts of life. Thee may not be clothed as the embodiment of heaven, nor minister at the altar of God, as a secret angel of mercy, she may teach His will and cause to ascend the humble, but most accepted sacrifice.

In all ages woman has been the source of all that is pure, unselfish and heroic in the spirit and life of man. It was for love that Antony and Cleopatra died. It was for love that the doctor worked seven long years, and for seven more. What must have been his emotions when on the morning of the eighth year he awoke and found the homely, scrawny Leah instead of the lovely and beautiful presence of his beloved Rachel. Poetry and fiction are based upon woman's love, and the movements of history are mainly due to the sentiments or ambitions she has inspired. There is no aspiration which any man entertains, no achievement he seeks to accomplish, no great and honorable ambition he desires to gratify, which is not directly related to either or both a mother or a wife. From the hearth-stone around which lingers the recollection of our mother, from the fireside where our wife awaits us all in the purity, all the hope and all the happiness which we fight the battle of life. That man who is not thus inspired, who labors not so much to secure the applause of the world as the solid and more precious approval of his home, accomplishes little of good for others or of honor for himself.

A Modern Ante.

A story which Mr. Davenport told of fourth of July

We are soon to celebrate the greatest of our national holidays, the birthday of our nation. Arrayed in all the beauties of the year the Fourth of July will soon visit us. Green fields and a ripening harvest proclaim it, bright sun cheers it and the hearts of freemen old it welcome. From the earth we are to be gathered to the aged woman whose gray hairs are fast sinking in the western horizon of life, every voice will on that day resound to the accents of Liberty, Washington, Country. The American Constitution is the purchase of American valor. It is the rich prize that rewards the toll of eight years of war and blood. The Constitution is the great memorial of the deeds of our ancestors. On the pillar and on the arches of that dome their names are written and their achievements recorded. While that last in will carry down the record to future ages. Great Britain had carried the name of her arms far and wide. She had reached her arms across the Eastern continent: had humbled France and Spain and given laws on the banks of the Ganges. A few scattered fragments had now rise up to contend with such a nation for more room. They had

for their object

in pursuit of that object of that they manifested a courage, constancy and union that deserves to be celebrated not only by every reader of the Home Circle Column, but by every poet and historian, while language lasts. It is fitting as one nation's "natal day" again approaches that mothers should present their children with a word painting of the little ship "Mayflower."

It was in the cabin of this little craft that the charter was established as the rule which would govern the Pilgrims upon the landing on the bleak and desolate shore of Massachusetts, was the germ of our constitution, was the seed which, though it had grown and flourished until it had become a tree with boughs and branches, covered this continent, whose fruits are called by the sages of the patriots all over the world, that they may be planted in other soil, and bear fruit in other climes. Let us look forward with happy anticipation to the dawning of Fourth of July morning and teach our children to properly observe the day.

KENTUCKY DAY
AT EXPOSITION.

Press Bureau, World's Fair, St. Louis, June 15.—Kentucky's day of glory at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition dawned and drew almost to a close without a cloud to mar its serenity. Late in the afternoon a heavy rain fell, but it did not break into the day materially. Every one was from Kentucky, and the 1,500 badges which the Commonwealth's arrangements provided were supplemented by 5,000 others struck off in a St. Louis printing shop. Augmented by more than three times their original number, the badges were soon exhausted, and the Commonwealth's proud name quivered over a host of hearts inspired by patriotism and sentiments closely akin. The red letters were conspicuous in every part of the fair grounds. On the Pike we saw them seeking the dare-devil attractions, but refusing to use the more tame. In the Palace of Liberal Arts, the remaining portion of the building, and most of all, in the Kentucky building, the crowd was marked with the symbol that stands for cordiality, hospitality and good-fellowship in all parts of the world. Louisville's delegation, accompanied by crowds from Richmond, Frankfort, Lancaster, Shivelyville, Cloverport, Henderson and Owensboro, increased the Kentuckians already in St. Louis by nearly 500 persons. The Henderson route's special train poured over 300 out at the gates, while the Southern and the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern brought heavy trains to this city.

Review of Troops.

Gov. and Mrs. Beckman, Miss Hattie Bell Fugna, Miss Meme Smith, President A. Y. Ford, of the Kentucky Commission, and Mrs. Ford, Judge S. W. Hager, Mr. and Mrs. Ely H. Brown, Charles F. Granger, Mayor of Louisville; Gen. Percy Haly, commanding the Governor's staff, and Garrett Wall were received in the Administration building by the Hon. David R. Francis, president of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Accompanied by Harry B. Lewis, president of the St. Louis Kentucky Society, the party went to the Kentucky building.

Gov. Beckman and President Francis mounted the balustrade at the south entrance, and reviewed a body of troops which is maintained at the Exposition. The troops were the Jefferson Guards, which are under command of Gen. Edmund F. Rice, master of ceremonies; the Philippine scouts, a battalion of United States marines, headed by the First cavalry band; the Philippine constabulary; the Frazier Guards, of Kentucky; cadets from Simpson College, Iowa; and the Iowa State College. Gen. John C. Banks, who was first in command of the West Point maneuvers last October, paid his respect to the Kentucky delegation during the ceremonies at the Kentucky building. Lieut. J. Sidney Haight, who was at West Point, connoted much to the smoothness of the military review. The Filipinos are excellently drilled, and form a part of the United States army.

President Francis' Welcome.

The Exposition had thrilled the crowd with Southern size, martial and martial measure, as Gov. Beckman, President Francis, Mr. Ford, Harry B. Hawes, and the three flag-bearers advanced to the low platform that had been erected. Mr. Ford introduced President Francis, saying "that we wished to welcome every one to the little spot of Kentucky which had been transplanted to Missouri, and that in Mr. Francis' audience would see native son of the old Commonwealth, who could much more ably and universal well come the new Kentucky."

Mr. Ford called attention to the fact that over the element seemed to favor Kentucky, as it had rained on Missouri day and on Indiana day, but to-day "the sun shone bright in the new Kentucky home." The rain, however, did not dampen the bright cheer in the Kentucky building. The building, which had been comfortably filled at the beginning, was packed almost to suffocation when Mr. Francis arose. He told his hearers of his love for old Kentucky, his native State, and followed with a statement of the great progress of the West. When energy had eclipsed all former efforts at producing a World's Fair and what Kentuckians had played in the Louisiana Purchase and in the Exposition from the first until to-day.

Gov. Beckman's Response.

An able and long speech Gov. Beckman responded to President Francis. He said, in part:—

The people of Kentucky, whose representative I am upon this happy occasion, direct me to congratulate you and those associated with you upon the progress of this great exposition and to wish for it continued success.

and prosperity. We consider it the most complete and elaborate gathering of the world's products and of the marvelous accomplishments of the age even before brought together. It is a magnificent and enduring monument to the genius and enterprise of the people of your city and State; its beauty and its splendor command the admiration of the people of every nation; it is a source of pride and pleasure to the citizens of this Republic because it is so magnanimous and proud to the world what we have long been conscious of ourselves, that this is the greatest nation on earth, that in business and commerce we exceed all others, that our advancement in the arts and sciences has never been equaled in the world's history and that to-day we can say truthfully and without unwarranted boastfulness that we lead other countries in civilization and in all those things that go to make human life better, safer and happier.

As we stand here surrounded with the marvellous achievements of your nation, we are profoundly impressed with the signal victory of American genius which this event typifies. With only a hundred years behind you, from the time when savages of an alien race were at the needless possession of this territory, down to the present era you have built faster and better than ever did people before, and now you have reared in a night, as it were, this matchless carnival city, which seems to be almost the culmination of man's attainment and triumph. Countries whose civilization dates back for thousands of years cannot equal this. You deserve great credit for the launching of this gigantic exhibition.

Looking over this magnificent exposition—exhibiting, as it does, side by side, the trade, the art and the home life of the people of all civilized countries—looking over this interesting and inspiring scene—is not your mind so elevated as to enable you to see how we are closely related to all the progress of the world?—the privileges and the duties of a citizen in the civilization of this day. By modern inventions and the co-ordination of human affairs we are close to all the world, a sharer in all their gains and misfortunes, in their thoughts and feelings, affecting them and being affected in turn by them for better or worse. What a sad, inglorious waste of money this exposition must be, if it does not teach us much, if it does not humble our vanity while enlarging our vision and swelling our hearts with a greater respect and sympathy for other nations.

For, Almighty God! we shall be blind if we do not see that a nation, in this day, should not spend all its efforts in gaining wealth and power, and that true happiness and glory can be won for its people by other means than by the sword and gun.

The Irenoclasts. Irenoclasts were image breakers. The controversy respecting images, which had been introduced into churches for centuries, was at last brought to a head when Ab. D. 726 and occurred much disturbance and loss of life in the eastern empire. Leo Isavus published two edicts for demolishing images in churches which were put into effect in 730. The controversy was carried on in the church, and the schism was the occasion of the second council of Nice, A. D. 787. The Irenoclasts were finally excommunicated at the eighth general council, later at Constantinople, and this council led to the separation of the Greek and Latin churches. Many images were destroyed in England and Scotland during the reformation and in the civil war—1641-48—and on each occasion the destroyers assumed the name of Irenoclasts.

Belief in Rat Chars. It is a curious fact that as late as the middle of the nineteenth century there existed a belief in the power of the gods of Cavan and Tyrone a belief that rats may be cleared away by rhymes and other magical means. One of my acquaintances was told by an Irishman of a rhyme which he recited—“I am of clearing them out of your place and leading them in another. No pipe was played. Indeed the method was a failure, but the rats came flocking out of mill and granary and house before midnight, and the woman was delighted to see their newly appointed helpers. It was a brilliant moonlight night, and scores of people besides the narrator followed them as they trooped down the roads and through a sleeping town to their destination. —Sunday Magazine.

Fire Under Water. Fire under water, produced by placing a piece of phosphorus in a common shaped tinholder and then covering them with the crystals of chlorate of potash. Next fill the glass with water and then add a few drops of sulphuric acid, the acid to be applied directly to the phosphorus and the water to the chlorate of potash. If the experiment is properly carried out tongues of bright red flame can be seen flashing through the intense chemical heat produced by the combination of the acid on the phosphorus and phosphorus being sufficient to inflame the latter, although entirely covered with water.

A Great Difference. At a dinner given by Governor J. K. Vardaman of Mississippi the subject of toasts came up.

“A very good toast,” said Governor Vardaman, “and one that comes home forcibly to all men in office, is once again to the cause of the people.” The toast was a farewell banquet to the governor of Vermont, whose term of office was about to end, but when he saw it was the author of “Emmett” he renewed his apologies and attentions.

The next day he sent to ask after Ronseus.

“Tell your master to chain up his dog,” was the only answer.

A Bishop's Comment.

Bishop W. A. Candler was advancing a more liberal loosing of the purse strings and told his audience that several years before he sent an article to a paper, in which he said, “We pray too hard.” The compositor, consciously or unconsciously, perpetrated a little joke, for when the article appeared it read, “We pray too loud and work too little.” “I let it go at that,” said the bishop. “The fact is, I believe the printer was right, and I never ventured to correct him.”

Benefits Reversed.

French and German law proved to have originated in the study of Italian with high hopes.

“How are you and your Italian teacher getting on?” asked one of Algernon's friends when the study had proceeded for three months.

“Awfully bad. Just about where I was,” said Algernon ambiguously, “but my teacher, d'you know, he's speaking English much better than he was when we began.”

to the edge of the grave or vice and then as quickly dashed back again, to go through the same process again. Sometimes he would fly right off in wavering, uncertain flight as though he could hear the sight no longer, but without stopping to rest he hurried back. In strength and nerve he was unequal to himself away or as if he hoped that something might have happened in his absence. This long drawn tragedy, this abandonment of grief, I watched from the window and when the body was discovered came on. Next morning the body had disappeared, and I saw the survivor no more—R. ### WORLD'S FAIR NOTES.

"Tell me all about the Fair," was the initial greeting to a member of the Kentucky Press Association upon his return home, after a four days' visit to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition last week, and, before he commenced to try to tell all, he hesitated, then began with the story of his experiences in taking a trip to Paris by submarine boat and returning by airship, about the reproduction of the Galveston flood and the mystifying special illustrations of "Herculean" and the creation."

But he had to tell that which dominated in his mind it would have certainly been about those massive, creamy white buildings which make a wonderfully magnificent architectural picture and which contain thousands of displays that are interesting and educational; and too the marvelous electrical display comes second as the most impressive attraction at the fair. These two attractions, the architectural and electrical, are the greatest features of the World's Fair. You can see them from 10 a.m. until 19:30 p.m. for forty cents.

Towering above every thing else on the Plaza of St. Louis the Festival Hall is the eye-center of the exposition. This great dome-like structure is for musical festivals and there every morning at 11:30 o'clock is given a recital on the largest organ ever built in the world.

Mr. Rorer, the professional cook of America, occupies the East and West pavilions, which are on either side of Festival Hall. A cookhouse was given to Mr. Rorer, Kentucky Day, at the East pavilion in honor of the Governor of Kentucky and the Kentucky Press Association.

On the following day, while several members of the Press Club were launching at the West pavilion, the waiters went on a strike. Mrs. Rorer was in a helpless position for at least twenty minutes, after which the girls shamefully resumed their duties.

The Fair's greatest educator is indeed the reproduction of Jerusalem. With the press party during their visit to the place was a man who had visited the real Holy City and he said the reproduction was splendid.

The city is 70000 feet. It is surrounded by a wall; and at each principal entrance are competent dragomen, or guides, from Jerusalem, who meet parties and take them through the city. Most of the guides are Nazarenes. They are well educated in Biblical history and speak English fairly well. Some leading features are Church of the Holy Sepulchre, built over the Place of Crucifixion. The Holy Rock, or Rock of Ages, went up on the 1st June. This is directly under the Dome within the Mosque of Omar, which is the site of the Temple where Jesus taught. The Jews' Walling Place, and Tower of David. There are numerous other features in the many streets. In the church of the Holy Sepulchre is the reproduction of Christ's tomb. Not there prominent divines of all denominations and from various cities will lecture frequently. This place should be seen by every person, for it is very interesting.

The Philistine minstrels at the Philistine tent put on the best show at the re-creation. The woman is twenty-seven inches tall and the man is two inches taller. They sing and dance and are quite accomplished. The ignorants eat every day they can kill. The men do the cooking, while the women weave, make baskets and have a good time. This exhibit covers for forty acres.

The Lone Star state is represented by a palace in the form of a five-pointed star. Unlike the situation of Cloverport and Tobinport are those GARTER SUPERSTITIONS.

Here are a few garter superstitions that still survive.
Gold garter buckles are "lucky" and silver ones the reverse.

The girl who wears her garters below
the knee will early lose her beauty.
To put on the left garter before the right on dressing in the morning will bring you bad luck all day.

The marriage of a bride who wears any but white garters on her wedding day will have an unhappy ending.

The luckiest colors for garters are white, blue and black. The wearer of white garter will lose a friend within a year.

In a garter buckle in church the wearer's marriage will be happy, but if the accident happens at a dance it is a sign that the wearer's sweetheart is faithless to her.

THE USE OF CHARMs.

Peccular Amulet which is Common Among the Germans.

The use of charms are superstitions, and a belief in charms and amulets prevails among people of every rank and grade, educated or ignorant, refined or vicious. When a man declares, "I have no superstition," he means that he has no belief in the charms and amulets which will save him.

"While I am not superstitious, yet I must say I always did believe," etc., demonstrating that he is about as superstitious as the average of mankind. Charms and amulets are made of almost anything that is believed to have power.

For many centuries a collection of human fingers, human bones, frogs, toads, snakes, pieces of glass, stone, iron, dried blood, bottles of water, etc., to elegant and artistic combinations of gold and precious stones. For many centuries these have been used all over the world.

The above-mentioned of the ancients, the letters being repeated and placed in the form of a triangle, was in general use. Written on a sheet of paper, folded up and worn on the person, it was supposed to keep off fevers and bring good luck to the wearer. The Koreans have a most peculiar form of this kind of charm, consisting of the figures 1 to 9 motives placed in the form of a square, thus:

2	0	4

The sum of the figures in each vertical, horizontal or diagonal row, eight rows in all, is fifteen. It is supposed to be very efficacious in promoting health, however, in all prospective and of evil influences. On this in the morning these figures are written on a piece of paper, rolled up in a pellet and thrown away or rolled in a piece of bread and fed to the fishes, which is held to be the most efficacious way.

A highly educated Korean gentleman said that this form of charm is used among all classes of people in his native land. Speaking of it, he said: "My father, an educated man, used to have all sorts of amulets, yet he would every morning write down the figures in the prescribed form on a piece of paper, roll it in a pellet, cover it with bread and feed it to the goldfish. He said that, while he did not believe in such nonsense, it always made him feel better."

"Oh, Miss Sophie," she said breathlessly, "I want to borrow a dollar, please, right away."

"What do you need the money for, Esther?"

"Well, now, you see, I'm going to get married, and I need it for the license."

"But if the man you are to marry cannot pay for the license how is he going to support you?"

"That's just what I am going to ask the man, Sophie. You see, tomorrow is Thanksgiving, and we are coming to your from dinner. Then you always give us something to take home, and in the evening the King's Daughters are going to have a basket distribution, and we will get one, and by that time we'll be well on our feet."

Rhyme for Timbuktu.

Timbuktu is chiefly interesting as the subject of verses submitted for a prize many years ago by Punch for rhymes to that curious name. One of the verses was:

And have a hump back too.

Another, with a more perfect rhyme, ran thus:

As I was hunting on the plains,

A buck was all got to me,
And he was a sum buck too.

THE WONDERFUL SUN.

Some of the Things We Know About
That Mysterious Star.

A very wonderful and unique result of our astronomical work is the same a typical star, the nearest one, and not so easy as to prevent us from studying it in detail, and yet presenting conditions so different from those we can obtain in our laboratories that a considerable extent it defies our reasoning powers, and our conclusions are very conjectural.

Certain facts, however, have been established beyond any possible doubt and must necessarily form the foundation of all reasonable theories and opinions.

We know, for instance, that its mean distance from the earth is very closely 39,000,000 miles; that its diameter is about 805,500 miles, or 109½ times that of the earth, and its bulk about 1,300, 000 as great.

We also know that its mass is about 320,000 that of the earth and that consequently gravity upon its surface is about 27½ times as powerful as here. A man who here weighs 150 pounds would weigh more than two tons upon that star, where a squirrel would not be able to jump any more briskly than an elephant here.

Experiments with burning glasses make it certain that the effective temperature of the sun's surface taken as a whole (though the actual temperature at the center is 10,000,000°) is 6,000°.

APPALING DISASTER.

New York, June 15.—One of the most appalling disasters in the history of New York, tragic in its immensity, dramatic in its episodes and deeply pathetic in the tender age of most of its victims, took place to-day in the East river at the entrance to the Long Island sound, within a short distance of the New York shore and within sight of thousands who were powerless to minimize the extent of the catastrophe.

In the burning to the water's edge of the Gen. Slocum, a three-decked excursion steamer, the largest in these waters, more than 600 persons, the majority of whom were women and children, were burned to death or drowned by jumping overboard, or by being thrown into the whirlpools by the lurching of the vessel and the frantic rush of the panic-stricken passengers. Approximately 500 bodies have been recovered and are now being tagged at the Morgue of the Bellevue Hospital and Hospital. Divers will still bring up a late hour task from the bottom of the vessel, which they say is filled with the bodies of human beings, while scores who leaped or were thrown into the river have not been recovered.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins; antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in which causes them to heal without maturation. And in one third of the cases required by the old treatment. Champlain's "Pain Reliever" acts on the same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries causes them to heal very quickly. It also relieves the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Short & Hayes.

The Cat's Eye.

The cat's eye stone, now prized as an ornament, is a very different thing from the ancient cat's eye, or eyestone of India, an agate cut so as to show the so-called eye or eyes. It was not until some time later that was used as money in some parts of India four centuries ago, and specimens found today have an interest to numismatists.

Making It Personal.

"Did you ever look at me?" asked the smiling, sympathetic young man of the practical young woman. It was the fourth long call he had made on her that week, and she was sleepy.

"Whose death do you mean?" she asked in a dry, discouraging tone.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney Trouble.

Kidney trouble prey upon the mind, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidney becomes out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is a common complaint for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urine scalds the flesh or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet unable to do so, then it is kidney trouble. The first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to the fact that the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable by kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp Root is soon realized. It is sold in druggists, in fifty cent, one cent and one dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail.

Don't make any mistake but remember the name, Swamp Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y., so every bottle.

DRY BONES VALLEYS

PLACES WHERE DEAD BODIES ARE PRESERVED BY THE CLIMATE.

In Chile, for instance, the air is so dry that it is almost impossible for an unburied body to decompose in the ordinary manner.

Among the most curious things in this queer old world perhaps the world is the "valley of dry bones" which continually crops up in various parts of the globe.

In Chile, for instance, the air is so dry that it is almost impossible for a body to decompose in the ordinary way. Here and there in the mountains or on the plains one may discover a body that has been dry for several years, but has no more returned to dust than to life.

There is literally a "valley of dry bones" not far from Valparaiso where a battle was fought during the recent revolution. The bones are seen today scattered among the rocks that are like nothing so much as Egyptian mummies, shriveled by the fierce sun and embalmed by the natural dry atmosphere.

There is a legend that there is a valley of dry bones" but that there is a real one in Ceylon no one who has visited that island can doubt for a moment. It is a peculiar fact and one which is born out in the testimony of the few pointers in Ceylon that when an elephant feels its last hour approaching it will if permitted to do so escape into the jungle to die. Once the sick elephant gets away it is never seen again. Where there is to prevent it.

It is absolutely certain that they must go somewhere, and therefore as they vanish so mysteriously in the hour of death one cannot but give credence to the tale which is often brought to the front of the hills by the Tamang and Chinses.

According to these people, there is a "valley of dry bones" near Takalawake, which is about twenty-five miles south of Kandy, the old capital of the island. This valley is said to be the abode of the dead, and is surrounded by a high, rugged, and difficult to find entrance and exit. Such places are common in Ceylon, and the particular case where the elephants go to die has never been discovered, though numerous efforts have been made to find out.

The old man assumed a stern parental air and took his pipe from his mouth to deliver his final decision.

"Well, not, I tell ye," he said. "I'll be havin' no back talk from ye. Git off the sleigh!"—Philadelphia Press.

United Confederate Veterans to-day decided to hold the next reunion in Louisville and elected the following officers:

Commander-in-Chief—Lieut. Gen. Stephen D. Lee, of Columbus, Miss.

Commander of the Department or Northern Virginia—Gen. C. Irvine Walker, of Greenville, S. C.

Commander of the Department of Tennessee—Gen. Clement A. Evans, Atlanta, Ga.

Commander of the trans-Mississippi Department—Gen. W. L. Casell, of Dallas, Tex.

Certain That He Would Win.

"I once knew an old Irishman who would invest his last cent in any kind of lottery he happened to be interested in," said the old man, smiling the other day. "One Christmas eve he came home with a ticket entitling him to a chance on a horse and sleigh that were to be raffled off.

"We'll be drawn out through Fairmount park to-morrow like the big gun," he announced with pride to his wife.

"Oh, pop, won't that be fine?" chimed in his little son. "You an' me can ride on the front seat and I and little John can sit in the back."

"We'll be doin' no such thing," asserted the old man. "We'll be the back seat for you, my lad. Yet mother will be on the front seat wit' me."

"I wish so," wished the youngster. "I wish to be in the front seat."

How the Mails Are Robbed.

There is a vast number of employees in the postoffice department, yet only about 400 cases of rifling the mails are discovered in the course of a year. It is so common a mail and telegraph letters that it is a wonder there are not thousands of cases. Their frequency speaks volumes for the honesty of the men in the service. Here is the method of the expert in opening letters: Place the envelope in a box and cover it with blotting paper. Then lay a piece of wet blotting paper upon the sealed flap and allow it to remain there under pressure of a book or something for a few minutes. This moistens the envelope, and the flap may be torn without difficulty. The contents being extracted, press the flap back with the dry blotting paper, and nobody can possibly detect the robbery. The only safeguard is sealed wax.—New York Press.

Why Birds Are Easily Poisoned. Birds seem to have no fear of poison, whether it be in the form of a seed or in the form of a poison, probably because they have no sense and swallow their food without masticating it. They are terrified to paralysis by the appearance of a poisonous snake, under the impression that it is the venom of the serpent rather than to an inherited knowledge of its venomous power, but such intelligent birds as rooks will pick up and eat poisoned grain, and hawks and ravens readily eat poisoned eggs and meat. Chaffinch eat the poison seed of laburnum and die from its effects. Whether birds do such as tits and greenfinches ever do so does not seem to be known. But wild birds are frequently found dying in gardens, though apparently healthy, and die within a few hours before, and their death may be due to the consumption of poisonous seeds.—London Spectator.

The weird feature is that, although vegetation seems to have been dense in former years, nothing now grows now. Nature seems to have a complete standstill. During the hot season the temperature of the valley is almost unbearable, and it is visited by seismic disturbances that cause the dead trees and dry stony stones to rattle like dry bones.

The legend of this "valley of dry bones" can hardly be taken without a pinch of salt, but we are nothing if not complete. Many years ago, say 1870, a negro woman named Anna, on a plantation in Cuba, was notorious for her cruelty to her slaves. She used to throw emphysema pepper in their eyes and afterwards stick cactus needles into their backs to drive them to work. One night the slaves revolted and burned the plantation house. The woman managed to escape in an open boat to Jamaica, where she sought refuge from her enemies. In the boat she died.

How she developed a mania for collecting all sorts and conditions of cats. When she had procured a multitude of the feline tribe she assumed herself to be the queen of the tribe.

The legend has it that she was a night person, and the cries of the cats were to be heard even in the Maroon villages. But one night a severe earthquake came and swallowed up the cats, their tormentor and her home.

Forbidden Fruit.

A request was once made to the authorities of one of the colleges at Cambridge that room might be found on the spacious lawns of the institution for the students of the college that had given up the practice of pinching and biting. The request was granted for the admission of these students of the fairer sex among the undergraduates, the master replied that was ordered in the first place that the students of the college that had given up the practice of pinching and biting must be devoted to the purposes of dormitory and must not be used for husbandry.—Spokane Daily

Death For Killing a Cat.

At least one of the old Saxon kings of England deserved that killing of a cat with a spear for his sins, and, curiously as it may seem, this law was in existence until less than fifty years ago. Both the old Welsh and the English laws contained a curious penalty for killing a cat, "the guardian of the royal hall." The offender was mulcted in a heap of corn sufficient to cover the defunct animal when held up by the tip of its tail with its whiskers touching the floor.

"Why so?"

England's Oldest Railway Station.

The only railway station in England that can boast of being really old is that at Bourne, Leicestershire, which is an ancient Roman station. For many years the possession of the Digby family, some members of which were implicated in the gunpowder plot. When the Great Northern and Midland Railways took over the line through this old station a memorial was set up for the inhabitants of Bourne asking that instead of pulling the old landmark down it might be converted into a railway station, for which purpose it answers admirably now. Part of the house is admirably now. Part of the house is admirably now.

Lengthening Life.

The difference in time in living every man's life from 60 to 80 in the course of four years amounts to 20,200 hours, or 3 years, 121 days and 16 hours, which are equal to eight hours a day for exactly ten years. So that rising at 6 will be the same as if ten years of life (a week) had been added to it. We may command eight hours every day for the cultivation of our minds and the dispatch of business.

When Cats Were Scarce.

In a curious collection of ancient Welsh laws, dated 943 A. —PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

Mrs. Eva Bartholomew, 103 East 12th street, New York City, N. Y., writes:

"I suffered for three years with leucorrhoea and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation, but I declined it as being very dangerous and I strongly objected to it going under. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health and have not felt well for fifteen years since I took Peruna."

"It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to allay such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of disease, chronic catarrh and rheumatism, and the particulars of these troubles, we have put this remedy to greater test than any year."

"All the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a detailed description of their condition and the particulars of their troubles, and he will immediately reply with complete directions for treatment, free of charge."
